LONG RUN LETTER

Mr. Cocanougher Discourses In An Entertaining Way.

Tells a Story of Great Fox Hunter and Has a Word About Prayer Meetings.

DEATHS IN THE COMMUNITY

We had a good number present and a very interesting prayer meeting at Bro. John L. Harmon's on the evening of the 26th. While the church is set apart as a place for worship and should have a meeting of this kind every week, each church will not always take that much interest in such meetings. Then it seems the next best thing for the good people to do is to unite in cottage meetings, which often circles over a large territory, thus enabling many to attend who otherwise would not have that privilege. But in the hurry and rush and full blaze of the twentieth century, is there not danger of prayer becoming obsolete, or at least degenerating into a mere form? Our forefathers thought nothing of walking five miles to the place appointed for prayer, but now it is to go a few squares in the city or a mile or two in the country, we think we have done something wonderful, and the recording angel ought to give us a whole page of his fair book to our credit. So let us urge upon the Christians of our country the importance of holding prayer meetings. They fill a place that no other meeting can possibly fill. The Lord has promised to be with and bless, but two or three that meet in His name. Surely that little number can be found in each community who are willing to come together in the name of the Master; it would be an affront to say less. The gospel is preached regularly (and we are thankful it is) by Godly and eloquent men. Oh, how sad to know that many country churches have no regular season of prayer.

Some time ago the generous sisters of our community planned a surprise birthday dinner, and sure enough on the morning of the 21 of February they, with their friends, gathered at the home of Mrs. M. C. Coyne, over on Deep Creek. This good woman, in an industrious way, went about her household work as usual, and Oh, my, how surprised she was when it dawned upon her that her friends were coming to honor her birth. It seemed that every body but herself knew it and when a whole community tries to keep a secret from one of its members they are apt to succeed. But then how we did enjoy the social side of the occasion, and the sumptuous dinner that was tastefully spread as well. The evening was spent in singing. Bro. Johnnie Key invoked the blessing of our Heavenly Father upon us, after which we all went to our homes wishing Mr. Coyne, who is one of our best women and yet in the prime of life, a long and happy life, and wondering how soon another celebration will come around.

On the 26th inst., Will Elliott tracked up and killed two red foxes, and his son a very large one also. With an art that has been acquired by long years of continual practice, and assisted by a natural bent of mind, Will can read the secrets of nature. The trees, brooks, fields and forest all reveal their hidden mysteries to this backwoodsman (for he can read them as an open book). He knows the habits of wild animals and their ways of living, would see signs of their presence and reckon their number and location, when the less skilled would see and know nothing. The craftiness of the fox is well known to him, and he seems to know just about what he will do next, and just where and how to hunt him. He knows his lair and when he will be at home, and on some bright, crisp February morning, when a slight drift of snow is on the ground, this old hunter goes out, and, after taking careful observation of the weather, and if favorable, he may soon be seen clad in his hunting suit without the companionship of even his trusty dog, and with brooch in hand, silently and cautiously making his way through forest and field in pursuit of his favorite game. Mr. Reynolds, who usually sleeps with one eye open, may be securely resting in a warm, secluded spot on some southern slope, planning how and how he will get the next lamb, or dreaming of some fat poultry yard, little realizing that so formidable a foe is near and that he is in great danger; for if his little red ferret springs in sight, it but for a moment, it is instantly covered by this deadly hunter. Then a report that echoes through the Long Run and Deep Creek hills—a brief struggle, and all is over.

On the morning of the 26th, Mr. Will O. Edwards, of near Perryville, passed to his reward. The following day Bro. Goddy, of that place, preached his funeral, and his remains were laid away in that beautiful cemetery. His death was caused by abscess of the lungs, after an illness of one week. He was a Christian gentleman, and had been Sunday school superintendent for some twenty years, and squire for a number of years. He was a prosperous farmer and business man as well, and his death leaves a great vacant place in his home, church and county.

After twelve days confinement Mrs. Amanda F. Isham departed this life, her death being due to pneumonia. She was born Feb. 17, 1873, died Feb. 29, 1907. She professed religion at the age of fifteen, and joined the Rock Bridge church two years afterwards. Deceased was married to Mr. James Isham on Oct. 1, 1890. The remains were taken to Rock Bridge, funeral services being conducted by Rev. J. A. Simms. Mrs. Isham was perfectly willing to die, her last words being "Jesus is waiting, all meet me in heaven." She leaves a husband, daughter, father, mother, four brothers and three sisters. "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord."

Prof. W. B. Edwards, who is one of our best surveyors, passed through Jensonston last week on his way home after an absence of two weeks in the Boyle county home, where he had been surveying. He reports such land worth about $2.50 per acre. He ran one line that was nearly two miles long, and surveying was very difficult in that rough country. He could not be prevailed upon to spend the night with his brother, but must go home to look after his sabb beds.

DROPPED DEAD

Aged Citizen of Moore'sville Died Suddenly Yesterday.

Mr. Thos. Moore, of Moore'sville, aged about seventy-three years, died suddenly at his home at that place yesterday afternoon. He left the house a few minutes before he received the fatal stroke to go to the barn for some purpose, and fell in the yard. When his wife and daughter reached his side he was unconscious, and remained in that state until his death a few hours later. The deceased was one of the best known men in that section, and his death was a great shock to the community. He was highly respected by all people, and was a good citizen. Deceased leaves a wife, two sons and a daughter who have the sympathy of all. Funeral services will occur this afternoon at Mr. Zion.

A Popular Man.

Harrodsburg Herald: The friends of Mr. Glave Goddard are urging him to announce for the Legislature, and promising him the support of the farmers. We were unable to see Mr. Goddard and find out whether he will consent to run. Should he do so, however, he would prove a very strong candidate and it would be a hard matter to pick a better man to represent Mercer county in the Legislature.

OVER 1,700 ACRES OF CROP POOLED

Enthusiastic Meeting Here Monday Afternoon.--Strong Addresses Delivered.

WAREHOUSE TO BE ERECTED AT EARLY DATE

One of the most enthusiastic meetings ever held in Springfield was that of the Burley Growers held here last Monday afternoon.

The meeting was addressed by Hon. W. C. McChord and Judge I. H. Thurman. The boys were in a shouting mood and they made the rafters ring. Up to the present over 1700 acres of the 1907 crop have been pooled.

At the close of the speeches by Mr. McChord and Judge Thurman, 1,000 acres were put in the pool in less than 20 minutes.

The pooling movement is spreading like wild-fire.

The big grower and the little grower are working shoulder to shoulder in a brotherly way.

Bully for the Burley Boosters.

Everybody is pulling for the pool.

Judge Thurman spoke first on last Monday, and he made an excellent speech. From a reasoning standpoint it was one of the best heard here upon the tobacco subject. In his clear, logical manner he pointed out to the growers the absolute necessity of pooling the 1907 crop, and his words went "straight home" to most of the large crowd in the court room.

He was followed by Mr. McChord, whom the boys have nicknamed "The Wheel Horse of the Burley Growers." Mr. McChord, from the verge of beginning, held the rapt attention of the audience and he was cheered to the echo. He did not mince words and "struck straight from the shoulder." Mr. McChord made a strong appeal to the farmers to pool the 1907 crop.

The Board of Control of Washington County has bought a six-acre lot on the railroad and has appointed a building committee. Work upon the large warehouse will be commenced as soon as the lumber can be procured and put upon the ground. The lot lies just outside the town limits, near the power house, and is an ideal location. It was purchased of Mr. W. C. McChord.

INTERESTING CONTEST

Pupils Springfield Graded School at Opera House Last Friday Night.

Our entertainment of last Friday night seems to have gone off fully up to our expectations, for we have heard nothing but compliments for all who engaged in it. The program was interspersed with musical selections rendered by the members of the Saxton Glee Club. The program opened with two selections by the glee club, "El Korah" and "Over the Waves." The speakers then came upon the stage and were introduced by Mr. Leo Simms in a few well prepared remarks. Tom Colvin, the first speaker among the boys, delivered John Temple Graves' Eulogy on Henry W. Grady. He spoke well, showing the effects of efficient training. Miss Louise Haydon followed him with a recitation, "Flying Jim's Last Leap," which she did with grace and effect. Next came a song by Miss Mary Haydon, accompanied on the piano by Miss Sue W. Ray, "Parted," by Tosti. The next speaker was Knight Handy, who spoke Henry W. Grady's "Bob." It was delivered with a grace and ease that is hard to find in a contest of this kind. Miss Rodman Thurman followed him with the "First Settler's Story," which she delivered well.

After these two speeches a vocal quartette, consisting of Misses Ray and Haydon, and Messrs. Colvin and Medley, sang "Kiss Me Goodnight." The next speaker was Mr. Ben F. Simms, Jr., who spoke "My Mother, My Country, My God." His delivery was excellent, and but for a lapse in memory would have had an excellent showing for the medal. Following this was a song by Harry Shultz, accompanied by Misses Ray and Numan and Mr. Thompson. Miss Nellie Simms next delivered, in a charming way, Trowbridge's "Vagabonds." The last speaker of the boys was Harry Shultz, who, in his splendid deep voice, delivered the old favorite recitation, "How the Church was built at Kehoe's Bar." Mr. Hattie Rice came last with the winning speech among the girls. She recited in an inimitable way, and to the delight of the entire audience, "Grandma Keeler gets Grandma Keeler ready for Sunday School." While the judges were out a guitar quartette was played by Misses Ray and Numan and Messrs. Thompson and Hume. Miss Ray also played a delightful guitar solo.

"When Knighthood was in Flower." The judges were some time deciding as the contests were very close. Mr. John Polin, in a well worded speech, presented the medals to Knight Handy, and to Miss Hattie Rice. The judges were Mr. Polin, Mrs. R. A. McElroy and Mr. C. M. McChord.

We have been so busy during the last week that we forgot all about taking notes for this column. Our memory is not so good as it was before Milton fell through the coil, having been severely shocked at that time. Upon reflection we are able to recall one or two very striking pieces of news that we do not guarantee to verify for the reasons aforesaid. We believe that they are largely true, however, which is all that a newspaper article need be.

Practice was again resumed last week by the young ladies baseball team. They have a park on the school grounds to the north and all the recesses are spent in getting into shape for the match game they expect to play with Lebanon. The exact lineup has not been decided upon yet, they have not even yet chosen their captain. The race for this position will be one of the most hotly contested affairs that have ever taken place in school circles. When it comes off we intend to let you know all the details. We promise that they will be interesting. Babe Buckman seems at the present writing to have control of the situation. Other probable candidates are Jeannette McClellan, Hattie Rice, Bennie Waters and Nellie Simms.

It may be necessary to introduce the old Latin custom of having the actor come forth and make his bow to the audience saying: "Nunc applaudit!" (now applaud), since the thrilling experiences of the Saxton Glee Club the night of the entertainment. At the end of the first piece the house was as silent as a grave-yard at midnight and in the midst of the next selection the curtain was rung down. They will employ a better next time who will please the audience and stage carpenters when the end of the piece comes.

First Visit In 53 Years.

Mr. Wm. Salmon, of Shoals, Ind., has been in the county for the past two weeks visiting relatives. Fifty-three years ago last November Mr. Salmon, together with his mother and father, one sister and brother, passed through Springfield in wagons enroute to their Indiana home, and not until to-day has he been in Springfield since then. He is now the only surviving member of his family. However, the brother who left here with him disappeared thirty years ago, and it is supposed that he was murdered, as no trace of him could be found. Mr. Salmon was with Sherman during the war and was in the famous march to the sea.

Death at Holy Cross.

Mr. T. E. Ballard, of McIntire, was called to Holy Cross Sunday night by the death of his brother. Deceased was well-known in this county, he having clerked in his brother's store at McIntire for quite a while. He was a man loved and honored by all who knew him, and his death was a great shock to his friends.

Death of a Centenarian.

Mrs. Martia Hardin died at her home at Polin last week aged 101 years, five months and ten days. She was perhaps the oldest person in Kentucky, and was one of the most interesting characters in this section of the State. Her memory was good, and she could relate many entertaining stories of the days when our grandfathers were. Mrs. Hardin lived to see her great, great grand children.

Death of a Child.

Little Elizabeth O'Bryan, daughter of the late Jas. P. O'Bryan, died in St. Mary's Hospital in Louisville from the effects of measles. Her remains were brought to McIntire and interred in the St. Rose cemetery last Monday.

Remains Arrive.

The remains of Mr. Scott Durham, whose death was reported in last week's issue of The Sun, arrived Monday at noon, having been sent from Patton, Cal. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Purdon, and the body was interred at Bethlehem Tuesday morning.

Congratulations.

The Sun desires to extend congratulations to Mr. Jas. Hayes, who was married at Seaboard's Hotel in Louisville last week to Miss Nora Bonta. The bride is one of the county's prettiest and most highly accomplished young women. Mr. Hayes is a prominent young farmer of this county, and is a man of many sterling qualities. May the voyage of these two be a happy one, and may the sea be calm as Life's great barque sails toward that port where all of us must anchor in the end.

Luther in Another "Mix-Up."

Last Friday night while driving home Luther Burns had quite a narrow escape from death or serious injury. Burns left town about dusk driving behind the buggy occupied by Reed Spaulding. Upon reaching the tollgate on the Williams pike Mr. Spaulding pulled to the side of the road and Mr. Burns, thinking that the move was made in order that he might pass, drove up considerably faster. Mr. Spaulding, however, had heard a rider coming in a fast gallop and had pulled aside for this reason. This was unknown to Mr. Burns and as a consequence John Reed, a negro on horseback, ran into him. Mr. Burns was thrown from his buggy, but not injured, aside from a sprained wrist, his buggy, however, was well nigh demolished. The negro was also thrown, but was not injured.

Speaking.

Mr. Will Nally, County Organizer for the A. S. E. will speak at Pleasant Grove Friday night and Fredericktown Saturday night.

KENTUCKY

THAW CASE

Prisoner Sent to Springfield for Safe Keeping. Killed a Man in Campbellsville.

James A. Shipp, who shot and killed J. A. Smith at Campbellsville some time ago, has been sent here for safe-keeping. Shipp was tried in the circuit court of Taylor county and given a life sentence. This sentence was reversed by the Court of Appeals. Shipp was granted a new trial and also a change of venue. Affidavits were filed before Judge I. H. Thurman, Circuit Judge of this, the Eleventh Judicial District, setting out that it would be unsafe for Shipp to remain in the Taylor county jail, and he ordered him to be moved here, which has been done. It was the opinion of Shipp against the Commonwealth which Mr. Deimsa recommended the Clerk of the Court of Appeals to send to New York for use in the Thaw case.

Attended Sale.

Editor Sun: In company with Mr. E. S. Mayes, Jr., I attended the combination Duroc bred sow sale, held in Louisville last Friday, the 22. The sale was well attended, nearly every western State and several southern States being represented, and a good many from Ohio and Indiana were present. The record price for this year's public sales was broken—56 heard sold at an average of $140 per head. The Ohio circuit of public sales, held during the week Feb. 11-16. The highest average was $139.44 per head, 1 noted with pleasure that Kentucky kept the majority of good ones, but the top one went to Ohio at $530, Indiana getting one at $500, but Iowa and Nebraska got mighty busy among the good ones and carried some away, too. One noticeable feature was a spirited bidding against the breeder; long prices didn't seem to scare him worth a cent. J. E. Shelby.

Circuit Court.

Circuit Court convened here Monday. There is little business of importance to come up this term, and it is thought that court will adjourn the first of next week. Judge Thurman's charge to the grand jury was very forcible.

Aged Man Dead.

Died, at his home near Sparrow, Ky., on February 20, 1907, Haydon E. Hahn in the 99th year of his age, of infirmities due to old age. Deceased was one of the pioneer settlers of this part of the county. He was a straight-forward, upright citizen, and was well known in this and adjoining counties. His friends were numbered by his acquaintance. He is survived by his wife and six sons, who have the sympathy of many friends in their bereavement.

THE SPARROW AND THE OWL.

THE SPARROW.

I heard a couple of young "guys" arguing a few days ago about the prop or way to commence a letter to your sweetheart. One of 'em said the letter ought to commence "My Dear!" The other one said it ought to commence "Honey!" Both of these oases were very much in earnest, and for a time the argument waxed warm. As a compromise I suggested that they write it "D D"—"Dimpled-Dumping-ling," and they were both very much pleased. Two young ladies in Springfield will now receive letters commencing in the above very loving manner.

I was out to see Mr. Charlie Foss last Saturday evening. Mr. Foss is one of the very few men I know who doesn't dislike an English Sparrow. He sees in us much good, although he may see in us much that is not good. Whenever I find a man who doesn't dislike Sparrows I know he is an extraordinary good man.

I spent a few minutes last Saturday afternoon on the porch in front of Mr. Cecil's drug store at Fredericktown. While there I heard a young man ask Mr. Cecil if it was true that the County Clerk had raised the price of marriage license. Mr. Cecil told him that the increase didn't take place until the first of April, and that the price would then be $210.00, the 30 cents being the estimated value of the average groom and the $210 the value of the average bride. The young man went away murmuring: "I'll have to make arrangements for a new suit before April."

I heard a negro hollering a few days ago to beat the band. I said: "Nigger, what you making so much fuss about?" And he said: "I've got my heel." He had stepped on a thorn.

I spent last Friday morning with Mr. Thos. Graham at Sharpsville. He is quite a pleasant chat with Mr. Graham. He is an entertaining gentleman, and always has something interesting to say.

I heard two women fussing in Springfield last Saturday morning. One of them had intimated that the other had been blinding her hair. The situation looked serious. A few minutes and I thought an officer would have to be called. However, one of them unconsciously said something about the Thaw trial and they forgot everything else.

Mr. M. D. L. Cooanough told me an interesting Indian story last Monday. He said the Indians used to make pies out of English Sparrows. That was perfectly awful!

Some women are eternally complaining. I heard a young lady weeping and sighing because the almanac predicted rain on the Fourth of July next. Evidently she expects to go somewhere on that day with Johnnie.

Women are natural-born chicken-raisers. They know how to bring 'em around all right. They pat them and pet them, and feed them scorched meal, and just as soon as they get a pullet or a young rooster fat off goes the head and the preachers are invited over to dine. I think that's wrong. That is, I think it is wrong to chop chicken heads off. Of course it's all right to invite the preacher over to dinner, but he ought to be fed on hominy, dried beans, cabbage, etc. I am a vegetarian. However, I don't think it is wrong to eat worms and bugs, because they are pests. I would suggest that some of my friends try a mess of bugs some time. Try to avoid the "sugar"; it takes too much sugar to sweeten them.

While in Mackville one day last week I learned that a wedding of more ordinary importance will take place pretty soon. It will be a church-wedding, and from the conversation I heard I judge it will be a dazzling affair.

One day last week W. D. Claybrooke was seen to go into the front gate leading to the residence formerly occupied by Rev. T. D. Latimer on Main street. This house has been vacant since Mr. Latimer and family vacated, and why Mr. Claybrooke went there and tried to gain entrance is a mystery. Some people think he is suffering an attack of melancholy, while others say he is afflicted with a case of exaggerated egotism. However, I am of the opinion that the testimony of experts will be unnecessary, as it can be easily proven that Mr. Claybrooke went there through "force of habit," caused by a sudden pressure against the love-sick nerves, which invariably sets up locomotion in the limbs and causes the mind to direct the footsteps in the direction of the object loved. These things can be proved, and I am sure the case against Mr. Claybrooke will be dismissed.

THE OWL.

One of my eyes was seriously injured a few nights ago. It was a very unusual accident. A woman in Springfield followed her husband to the front door last Thursday night and spoke so harshly to him that I dodged and ran a snag in my eye. Women ought to be more careful, and speak in a more gentle manner.

I know a little woman in Springfield who is continually smiling. She is unmarried, and she is what I would call a "good catch." I presume she hasn't a great amount of money, but, lawdy, she has an abundance of heaven in her soul. She's too good for the average man, and if she ever marries I hope her husband will be big of soul, big of brain and big of heart. He will have to have all of these elements or he will be outclassed by his wife.

Miss Katherine Russell has sent to me those spectacles I ordered some time ago. She sent them by a certain young fellow who didn't know they were loaded. I put them on and turned my back upon him just to see what the glasses would work, and I must say they are truly marvelous. I saw this young man practicing the go-go eye art, and just ahead of me I saw two young society men taking a drink of soda water out of a bottle. So you see I am now prepared to look in all directions at the same time.

A couple of young ladies a Tatham Springs have sent me word to "come out and look around." They tell me that quite a number of "great sights" are to be seen in that section every night.

Since the Thaw case has been in progress a great many people have "cut-tailed" their bible reading. By the time they are through reading the "testimony" they are so sleepy that they can read but a few verses of Holy Writ. That's what I call worldly-mindedness of a very degrading character.

I am fully convinced that the world would be better if more of its inhabitants could be afflicted with "sleepy-headedness" of a more pronounced type. In fact the world would be much better off if some folks could be kept under the influence of chloroform. I once knew an old nigger who slept 20 hours out of every 24, and the other four hours were spent in eating up the provisions which his wife bought with wash money. So you see his time was all consumed. However, I am told that for several days and nights upon one occasion he could not close his eyes, and it was during this distressing case of insomnia that he stole a shoat. He was arrested, tried and sent to the penitentiary for one year.

Selfishness is the cause of much of the meanness in the world. Too many people are willing to sacrifice friendship, and even honor, for SELF. Did you ever stop to think about how far-reaching is selfishness. First it may be only a tiny seed, but it soon takes root and spreads till it finally develops into a mammoth monster. Indeed, from the tiny seed of selfishness grow defamation of character, blackguardism and even murder.

If money grew upon oak trees there would be no fruit raised in this country, because people would plant oak trees upon every available spot of ground.

The divorce evil continues to grow in this country. I contend that this evil is largely due to bad cooking. I have never seen a man who wanted to leave a good cook, and they usually use all kinds of persuasion to keep a good cook from leaving them.

Happiness can be successfully cultivated, and you don't have to hoe it either. Just weed out the discontent, and look up to God's blue skies and whistles.

GHOST PARTY GIVEN BY GOTHAM COUPLE

Guests in Weird Apparel Dance in Rooms Rivaling Inferno's Horrors.

New York.—It was a ghostly company, but it was the highest spirits. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Alfred Brooks gave a spook party, a ghost dance, a revel of apparitions at the Hotel St. James, the other night. Graveyard yawn, but never for an instant did the Brooks' guests weary of the fun they had.

Mr. Brooks, known to the musical world as Anita Comfort—a proudest club woman, too—exhausted her ingenuity to make the occasion one of ghastly horrors, of horrible deliriums.

The drawing-rooms were filled with weird creatures clad in white, who might have been driven there in automobiles from the most remote districts. The favors in the German were sweet.

It Was a Ghoulish Party.

Little toy skeletons. Death's heads whose orbits were illuminated by green electric lights added to the beauty of the decorations.

A Hindoo palimpsest, under the canopy of crossbones, foretold pleasing results beyond the Styx. Naturally, "Old Nick" Riddle was there. One of the young women ghosts told Mrs. Brooks most enthusiastically, "You certainly are giving us the devil of a time."

The climax came at midnight. The lights were dimmed, chains clanked, tortured souls in cozy corners shrieked, and the ghost dance grew furious, then—

The costumes were cast off and from their winding sheets emerged lovely women in gay gowns and gallant men in swallow tails.

Miss Harriet G. Bird, a New England woman, has established a home and red cure for horses on her farm near the little village of Stow, about 23 miles from Boston. The object of the farm is not only to provide a place where old and worn-out and disabled horses may find a comfortable home, but to provide board, pasture and care, such as medical and surgical treatment for ailing horses owned by cabmen, expressmen, pedlars, etc.

A barnyard dressed down by soft cold winds is recommended by "Iard's Dairyman." The ground was leveled and then covered with straw. The treading of the cows made it about more solid, and all the repairs the yard needs each year is a wagon load of straw to go in to fill up the places washed out by the heavy rains. Worth trying. Certain it is that the muddy, dirty, disease breeding cow yard should be eliminated.

Here is a new method of breaking a cow from the habit of self-sucking. It consists in an Indian farmer and declared effective. He ground the tests and lower part of the udder with fresh lard and then sprinkled red pepper upon the lard from a pepper box. If after a few days' respite, after the first few applications the cow showed a tendency to resume the sucking habit he repeated the dose and soon had her broken, he says.

Stories About Opie Reed's Kentucky Newspaper Career.

(FROM THE NEW HAVEN ECHO.)

I have before me a copy of The Free Press, published at San Bernardino, Cal., by Harry C. Warner, a former Lebanon boy, who was Opie P. Reed's first partner and one of the leading characters in Reed's novel "Old Ebenezer." Those who have read its delightful pages will readily recall the character of J. Warren, the unfortunate newspaper man who had trouble every week with the express company who held his papers until the C. O. D. was paid. Warren & Reed published the first newspaper Allen county ever had. It was called the Scottville Argus. It did not last long however for the sheriff laid hands on the old Washington hand press and the balance of the outfit. However the man who was responsible for the sheriff's act had a just cause to regret it as long as he lived. For the man who bought the outfit lent it to the boys to get out a farewell edition. It certainly was a warm member. It was filled with only matter about that man. While they roared him on one side they ridiculed on the other. The gall they interjected into it was only counter balanced by the humor they put in the sheet.

The story of "Old Ebenezer" was laid in Scottville and many of the characters were taken from real life about that place. I think it's the best thing Reed ever wrote.

From Scottville Warren and Reed went to Carlisle, Ark., where they started The Prairie Flower, but there was not enough moisture there to make it bloom and it turned its toes beneath the daisies. Soon afterwards they turned up at Conway, Ark., and started the "Arkansas Traveler." Here Reed's humor began to be noticed and it was not long before Little Rock capital was after them and they moved there where it thrived. But it attracted attention in Chicago Ill., and later moved there. It was then that Reed and Warren parted after being together for several years and it was then that I last sight of Warren until Saturday when I received a copy of his paper, The Free Press.

The Arkansas Traveler did not thrive in Chicago like it did in its sunny Southern home. In fact when it started down the tobanog it did not need any one to shove it. However a funeral procession stopped the last issue. Read and Al Flanders had spent most of the morning taking in the Chicago Press Club. Flanders had promised to help Reed to get up his "copy" that afternoon and they had started for the office; at one corner a funeral procession was passing and they dropped into a saloon until it went by. An hour later they came forth only to be comforted by that or another procession headed for the cemetery, so they went back into the saloon. When they came out some hours later there was processions moving in every direction and the time to go to press had passed on by never to come again.

Read first learned his trade as a printer on the old Franklin Patriot under Brevard & Nungesser. His first article in print attracted attention although the editor had thrown it into the waste basket. It was about some "movers" who had passed through the town driving a cow attached to a spring wagon, and that evening Read was at their camp and found them milking the cow. He thought the story good enough to go to press and wrote it up but the editor thought otherwise.

However the editor was suddenly called away, and it was found out after he left that there was not enough copy for that issue. Then was Opie's chance, and he went to the waste basket and fished out his piece and set it up. The article was widely copied, so that the editor on his return had to thank Read in place of scolding him.

Read owes much of his success as a writer to the experience he gained on the Patriot for there he worked under that brilliant but misguided genius, Andrew W. Kelly who was the editor. Kelly saw that Read would make a writer and carefully advised him how to prepare himself. I believe that Read closely followed his advice.

The Mail Order House.

Elizabethtown News: There is no doubt that the mail order houses are playing havoc with the retail trade, especially in the country towns and small villages where the stocks are necessarily small. If the government passes the parcel post bill, whereby a suit of clothes can be mailed for ten cents or less from any place in the United States and delivered to the farmer on his rural route, it will sound the death knell of many small stores and seriously cripple the profits of many more. The home pride of people has been appealed to, to stop the patronage of mail order houses, but it seems to do little good. The character of goods sold by these same houses have been shown up as inferior to what can be bought at home at the same price, but still the infatuation to order from a large catalogue holds many people in its grasp. It has been shown recently that these mail order houses buy yearly all of their stock from the jobbers, from the people who sell to the retail trade. They furnish the key to the situation, and if properly managed will soon put the mail order houses out of business. It is only necessary for the retailers to refuse to buy from any jobber who sells to mail order houses. Lists of these jobbers can be made up and sent to retail merchants. Whenever the jobber in any line of goods has to decide between selling to the retail trade and the department mailing establishment he will choose the retail merchant and then the mail order houses will be put out of business. If the retail merchant in the country wants to continue in business he should at once find out the jobber he does not want to buy from under any circumstances.

The Limit of Life.

The most eminent medical scientists are unanimous in the conclusion that the generally accepted limitation of human life is many years below the attainment possible with the advanced knowledge of which the race is now possessed. The critical period, that determines its duration, seems to be between 50 and 60; the proper care of the body during this decade cannot be too strongly urged; carelessness then being fatal to longevity. Nature's best helper after 50 is Electric Bitters, the scientific tonic medicine that revitalizes every organ of the body. Guaranteed by Hayden & Robertson, Druggists. 50c.

A Brave Man.

Courier-Journal: "I know I am going to die," said Justice Cortese, of Paterson, N. J., as they lifted his torn and mangled body from the debris of his office that had been wrecked by the explosion of an infernal machine. "Some one has tried to murder me, and I want to tell something that may help the police. If you give me chloroform I may never be able to tell it."

Thus, despite the agony he suffered, Cortese made the physicians delay the operation they had insisted on performing immediately in the hope of saving his life. He made his ante-mortem statement and then the physicians ministered an anesthetic and amputated his arms and legs. He was right. The explosion occurred at 6:30 o'clock in the evening and at 11 o'clock that night he was dead. He had not gained consciousness.

Heart Weakness

The action of the heart depends upon the heart nerves and muscles. When from any cause they become weak or exhausted, and fail to furnish sufficient power, the heart flutters, palpitates, skips beats; and in its effort to keep up its work, causes pain and distress, such as smothering spells, short breath, fainting, pain around heart, arm and shoulders. The circulation is impeded, and the entire system suffers from lack of nourishment.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure makes a heart strong and vigorous by strengthening these nerves and muscles.

"I had palpitation and pain around my heart, and the doctors said it was heart trouble. I don't believe it now, for after taking six bottles of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, three bottles of the Nervine and three boxes of the Nerve and Liver Pills I am entirely cured, and feel better than I have for five years, and it is all due to these remedies. I want you to know that your medicine cured me. It relieved me from the first dose, and I kept right on till the pain in my chest was gone, and I kept on feeling better and better until I was cured." JOHN H. STEPHENSON.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails he will refund your money.

What Cortese told the police, by sheer force of will, was a story of a game life. Because of his incessant labors in behalf of law and the consequent punishment of various offenders in Paterson he has been threatened and vilified. Anonymous letter-writers beseeched him with warnings and curses and vows of vengeance. He kept at his work however, because it was right and it was his duty. The lawless elements "got him" at last.

Here was a courageous man. He stuck to his post in face of the threats and he defied his tortures while dying to do his part to aid the police in tracing his murderers. He might have said, with Christian resignation, "I forgive them," but what he actually did was more in keeping with his previous course. As a friend of the law he wished all culprits brought to justice; and low by the treacherous hands of assassins, he made the physicians wait until he could give his evidence against those who plotted against law and him. Paterson should be proud of Cortese and the authorities should be relentless in their determination to bring to the gallows those responsible for the outrage that destroyed his life.

For Burns.

The very best thing for burns are glycerin and epsom salts. Lime water and linseed oil are most widely used, but glycerin and epsom salts are superior. Moisten the salts with water enough to dissolve, add an equal amount of glycerin as of salts used. Soak cotton in the liquid, place on burn, bandage so as to keep out the air, keep moist, and the injured part will be well in a remarkably short time. Relief from pain is almost immediate.

Cleaning a White Fur Rug. I have a robe which has been used as a rug and was very dirty, says a writer in the Boston Globe. I suppose you mean the white ones with quilled lining. I put mine right into the wash-tub and put lots of soap powder into the water, also rubbed soap well into the fur. It has come out looking lovely. I forgot to say that I first put it on the line and beat it well. Wash early in the morning on a windy day and hang in the sun.

"Regular as the Sun"

Is an expression as old as the race. No doubt the rising and setting of the sun is the most regular performance in the universe, unless it is the action of the liver and bowels when regulated with Dr. King's New Life Pills. Guaranteed by Hayden & Robertson, druggists. 25c.

RAILROADS INDICTED.

Harrodsburg Herald: The grand jury, Tuesday returned five indictments against the Southern Railway Company charging them with having failed to provide separate coaches for the white and colored people between Harrodsburg and Burgin. They also returned an indictment against the Cincinnati Southern Company charging it with maintaining a nuisance by running trains at a dangerous and unsafe rate of speed through the town of Burgin. It is claimed that the trains are run so fast through there now that it is dangerous for pedestrians to cross the railroad. A number of Burgin people were before the grand jury about the railroad during the Court. The grand jury adjourned finally Tuesday, having consumed seven days.

Endorsed By The County.

"The most popular remedy in Otsego County, and the best friend of my family," writes Wm. M. Dietz, editor and publisher of the Otsego Journal, Gilbertville, N. Y., "is Dr. King's New Discovery. It has proved to be an infallible cure for coughs and colds, making short work of the worst of them. We always keep a bottle in the house. I believe it is the most valuable prescription known for Lung and Throat diseases." Guaranteed to never disappoint the taker, by Hayden & Robertson Drug store. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

A Turkey Lie.

Owingsville, Ky., Feb. 22.—Dave Crouch, while plowing for a tobacco bed on John Coyle's farm in an old orchard, plowed up a turkey egg which was broken by the plow. When broken it was found to have a live turkey in it. The egg had been embedded under the sod about four inches. The sod had not been broken for twenty years. The turkey is on exhibition here.

A Habit to Be Encouraged.

The mother who has acquired the habit of keeping on hand a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, saves herself a great amount of needless anxiety. Coughs, colds and croup, to which children are susceptible are quickly cured by its use. It counteracts any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia, and if given as soon as the first symptoms of croup appear, it will prevent the attack. This remedy contains nothing injurious and mothers give it to little ones with a feeling of security. Sold by every reliable dealer in the Blue Grass.

TO THE BEAUTY COMMITTEE OF THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE,
GENTLEMEN:

(FROM THE SUN OF MAY 25, 1905.)

Figure it out on a rose leaf and write with the brew of a lily that nowhere under the Great Blue Dome is there a creature half so pretty as a Kentucky woman. She is prettier than an evening star in the shadow of a summer sunset, more inspiring than a thousand songs and as bewitching as a fawn entangled in a wilderness of roses. She's our Hope, our Romance, our Vine and Fig Tree, the Light that enables us to see beyond the stars.

Pull for the pool.

The Thaw case is attracting more attention than spring millinery styles.

Get in the pooling habit!

The American Society of Equity is putting the cold steel to the trusts of the country.

Over 1,700 acres of the 1907 crop pooled in Washington county! Bully for the Burley Boosters.

The Atlanta Constitution refuses to print the proceedings of the Thaw trial. That's perfectly awful! The horrid thing!

The Courier-Journal printed the picture of a woman on last Sunday—Miss Della Carson, claimed by the Chicago Tribune to be the prettiest woman in the world. We have closely examined the picture and have decided that the Tribune is mistaken. Miss Carson is a right pretty girl, but we counted, on the streets of Springfield on last Sunday, 'leven women who are prettier.

If the 1907 crop is not pooled, the Continental Tobacco Company will hang more trophies to its belt.

The Courier-Journal's beauty contest promises to be interesting. Washington county has five or six hundred women that are eligible to entry.

"For the time being" a man may get the "hot end of it" by dealing honestly and squarely with his fellows, but in time his burns will heal and there will be no scars upon his soul.

John D. Rockefeller has given $32,000,000 to the "General Education Board," but none of this money will go to educate the children of our poor devils who have been paying him exorbitant prices for coal oil during the past decade.

Rev. W. T. Gordon, who recently left here, after a visit to his brother Squire Gordon and other relatives, is now located at Marshall, Texas, and is the editor of the Marshall Daily Sun, a paper recently launched in that city. The paper is a good one and Mr. Gordon's editorial column is very entertaining. In fact it reads as smoothly as ink "flung" by the pen of an old stager.

LITTLE INVENTIONS
EARN BIG MONEY.

(Frederick Haskins in Courier-Journal)

Whenever a new patent comes out, especially some little thing that anybody might have made you will always hear the remark: "Why couldn't I have thought of that?" Fortunes are made even from the most trivial contrivances. A man walked from Philadelphia to Washington to patent the gimlet-pointed screw, and the simple idea eventually earned him more than a million dollars. The rubber tip on the end of lead pencils made its inventor rich. The metal point on the end of your shoe-string earned a fortune for the woman who thought of it, and the copper cap that so long adorned the toes of children's shoes earned $2,000,000 for the lucky person who patented it.

Many valuable inventions were hit upon in a most accidental way. The art of making sugar white was discovered by a harmless old speckled hen. This feathered matriarch one day went for a walk through a field of clay, and later without taking the precaution to wipe her feet, walked through a sugar mill on the same plantation, indifferent to the fact that she was scattering clay all over the loose mounds of sugar as she passed. Afterwards it was discovered wherever her tracks had fallen on the moist sugar the clay had whitened it. Scientists took up the matter, and from this incident introduced the method of bleaching sugar by the clay process.

A dog gave us the idea of dyeing cloth in quite as accidental a manner. One afternoon so many years ago that the date is of small consequence, a noted man and his sweetheart went for a walk along the sands of the seashore in a far off country. A little dog trailed along at their heels, and becoming weary of much lead-making finally ran ahead and went fishing among the rocks. One particular shellfish which he captured and devoured exuded a fluid which dyed the hair about his mouth a pretty purple. Investigation of this incident founded the science of dyeing cloth, which now gives a happy feminine world the pleasure of flaunting so many brilliant colors of its attire.

A man from Michigan was told by the doctors to take his wife South for her health. He purchased a big wagon and team for the trip, and thought to make some profit carrying a stock of feather dusters to sell along the way. One day he went to the factory where his dusters were being made, and while standing in the yard talking to one of his employees, picked up from the ground one of the "strutters," or rat feathers from a turkey—the refuse from the duster factory which he had been twisting a thread back and forth through its broken edges, and the idea of the featherbone came to him from the result of his idle play of his hands. The featherbone is the successor of whalebone, and is indispensable to the attire of the modern woman. He patented the idea and received so much money from it that he will never have to travel overseas in a wagon again unless he wants to.

A man standing in front of the post-office in Washington, D. C., bent a small piece of wire in his fingers until it took the shape of a T. He decided to make a good paper fastener," he remarked to the man with whom he was talking, and he straightaway made the idea patented. Another man made money from the big fish, in an imbedded string in the end of an envelope to cut above the surface of the water by forcibly expelling water from its body. Man saw this and invented the sky-rocket. The rope-making machine used in the United States many years follows almost the precise lines that a spider does when making his own frail cable.

It is interesting to note how man has borrowed many of his ideas from the animal world. Wasps made paper from wood long before man decided it was a good substitute for rags. The folding scissors and folding pocket compass are about the same as if he had been in a well. The congregation was so indignant at the inventor for precipitating this embarrassing situation, that he was almost churched.

Thomas Jefferson may be termed the "Father of the Patent Office," for it was he who saw the passing of the act creating the office and copyright system. For a number of years he was on the committee who passed on the merits of all designs submitted to the office. One Dr. Thornton, a rather eccentric man, was the only department clerk the office had for a long period. During the War of 1812, when the British soldiers had a large cannon heavily charged pointed on the patent office to destroy it, and the Dr. rushed out and placed his body before the mouth of the cannon, exclaiming that if Gotha and Vandals would destroy a building containing models that would benefit all the world, the ball must go through"—the probable forerunner of American matting. One of the most recent inventions by woman is a shoe string that won't come untied.

The records of the patent office show how much some people have invaded the field with most eccentric ideas. One of these is an anti-scratching device for hens. This unique contrivance when fastened to the ankle of a hen not only prevents her from scratching, but absolutely forces her to walk away in spite of herself. Each time she kicks backward the point of the device sticks in the ground and propels her forward. An invention called the "anti-snoring device" is something similar to a telephone. It fits over the head and has a tube running from the ear to a piece that fits over the mouth. No sooner does the sleeper begin to snore than the sound is transmitted to his own ear, causing him to awaken at once. It would certainly be a boon to the public if the Pullman Car Company would corner this patent and furnish it to fat men who travel on sleepers. Another sensation in the patent office has brought out a machine that will automatically tip a man's hat when he passes a lady acquaintance on the street.

A woman is responsible for a patent crimping pin that can be used as a paper cutter, a skirt supporter, a paper file, bouquet holder, a safety pin, a shawl fastener, and a book mark. There is a patent chum that rocks the baby's cradle; a pocketbook that combines a pistol, so that when the highwayman demands your money or your life, you can send him to kingdom come while in the seeming act of handing over your valuables. This idea may have been plagiarized from the plow which was brought forward in the early days for the use of pioneers of bare farms in the time of Indian uprisings. When the industrious tiller of the soil was interrupted by bad Indians determined to take his scalp, he merely had to turn his plow about, pull the lanyard and greet the astonished enemy with a load of grape or shrapnel.

The story is told of an Iowa man who patented an India rubber sidewalk. After much lobbying with his friends among the town council, he was allowed to put down several yards of it as an experiment. As a noise-absorber it proved most effective and the early demonstrations seemed to be living down all skepticism in regard to it so rapidly that the inventor's fortune was all but made. Then the inventor made a fatal blunder. To show how solid and strong it was he began jumping up and down on it with his whole weight. The walk could not forget that it was still rubber, and when the ambitious inventor planked his heels into it he was promptly pitched over the fence into a bar of plaster. The episode proved a joke that the budding popularity began to wane, and there are still no rubber sidewalks in Iowa.

Another happy idea that came to grief was the adjustable pulpit brought out by a Texas inventor. An observing member of a certain congregation in the Little Star State noticed that some of their preachers were tall, and some were short; so he conceived the idea of making an adjustable pulpit that would accommodate itself to all heights. The first preacher to use the automatic device was a short man, and the inventor was on hand and took his measure to a nicety. Let when a six-foot pastor came on the inventor had the pulpit and could not go to church. The pulpit was set for his short predecessor and nobody could do a thing with it. The inventor had insisted that his device was easy to manipulate, but it proved most stubborn and would not submit to a readjustment. The tall man started in with it, and it was so low that in reading his text he had to stoop over almost as much as if his book was placed on a chair. When he began to preach he was getting along well enough when he stamped his foot to emphasize a point. His action released the spring in the floor and the pulpit shot upward until it completely hid the preacher from the view of his hearers. The remainder of his sermon sounded about the same as if he had been in a well. The congregation was so indignant at the inventor for precipitating this embarrassing situation, that he was almost churched.

Thomas Jefferson may be termed the "Father of the Patent Office," for it was he who saw the passing of the act creating the office and copyright system. For a number of years he was on the committee who passed on the merits of all designs submitted to the office. One Dr. Thornton, a rather eccentric man, was the only department clerk the office had for a long period. During the War of 1812, when the British soldiers had a large cannon heavily charged pointed on the patent office to destroy it, and the Dr. rushed out and placed his body before the mouth of the cannon, exclaiming that if Gotha and Vandals would destroy a building containing models that would benefit all the world, the ball must go

PRATHERS CREEK.

A surprise birthday dinner was given to Mrs. G. H. Christerson on last Friday the 22nd, that being her 31st birthday. About forty guests were present, and a most enjoyable day was spent. About 10 o'clock the crowd began to gather, bringing well-filled baskets and trays full of cream. At 12:30 as many of the guests as could be seated were invited to the dining room where they held a table crowded to its utmost with tempting edibles. Mrs. Christerson received several nice presents. The day was spent in pleasant conversation, and will long be remembered by all present and by Mr. and Mrs. Christerson. The dinner was a complete surprise to Mrs. Christerson, but it was an unusually happy surprise. Kindness should be shown toward all people as often as possible. It cost us nothing to speak a kind word to our neighbor and friend, and it helps him over life's rough ways. We are all a little deficient along these lines—we do not scatter smiles as often as we should. Let us all endeavor to say something frequently which will lighten the burdens of our neighbors. Let everybody attend our A. S. of E. meetings. Our lodge meets at Texas every Saturday night, and it should be largely attended. Help this good work along with your presence.

Sunshine And Shadow.

One peak, mayhap the one I mount,
Is clad with agnized light;
And one that riseth far abroad
Is hid in shadow-night.
Nay, oft the summit that I seek
Is dim with fearsome gloom,
While all around me bursts the day,
Like gardens, into bloom.
One life is bright and fair with joy;
One life serene with peace;
And one was with many thorns
And winds toward Calvary.
If on my path Thou poorest, Lord,
Thy favor like a flood,
O teach me pity for the pain
That dim my brother's road.
If e'er the tollsome course I tread,
I grope, tho' it be day,
Oh, make me thank Thee for the sun
That glides another's way.

TEXAS.

By request of one of the subscribers to The Sun at Winchester, Ky., I will give a few items from our little village. It seems that our former correspondent from this place has forgotten us, and it makes us feel a little bit ashamed when looking over the letters from other places, that we are so far behind.

We have quite a flourishing little town. Peterson Bros. are kept busy buying and selling goods to their many customers, and the new firm of Murphy's, with Lucian Purdom as clerk, is doing good business.

Our spring school is being taught by Miss Mattie Begley. The school opened up with about thirty pupils, most all of whom are small, as young men and young ladies are almost a thing of the past. But there are still some few remaining, that are on the marriageable list, and as Texas has never had an old maid to boast of, I am sure none of these that are left will ever claim this title.

The Sparrow and Owl were fine last week. I think it a pity for them that some folks won't let them alone. I think the Sparrow will have to visit our little town for the children all love them so well that we often see them standing on the veranda throwing crumbs these cold, snowy days and the little sparrows at their feet picking them up.

The people around about Texas are very generous about taking the county papers and the dailies, but we women folks don't dare read them before the husband and we never grab but quietly wait until he's through and lays it aside. Don't you think we are under pretty good control?

Born, to the wife of Mr. Hubert Kimbrell, on last Saturday week, a nine pound girl, Margaret Naylor.

Miss Fannie Wayne went to Louisville Monday to visit her sister, Hattie.

Miss Corine Loebman and a young lady friend of her's are visiting at the home of Mrs. Joe Begley this week.

I have a tender feeling for Miss Laura and Retta, but don't be alarmed, girls, they will return to the city in a short time and you will be first again.

Rev. Warner, the Methodist pastor from the Mackville church, preached for the people last Saturday night.

Mr. W. S. Purdom is in Louisville this week visiting his sister, Mrs. J. Bailey Peyton.

Mr. Ivan Carry, of this place, has had a telephone put in his house.

Mr. W. N. Keeling, of Springfield, was here last week.

—Messrs. W. A. Clements and Ben Hayden, Jr., are in Shelbyville attending a meeting of the State Farmers' Institute. They are delegates from this county. Hon. W. D. Claybrooke is also attending this meeting.

—Little Lillian Towler, who has been ill for some time of typhoid fever, is improving, and she is now considered out of danger. She is a pretty and bright child, and although she has been living here but a short while she has endeared herself to many people, who will be glad to learn that she is now recovering.

—Mr. W. F. Royalty, of Tablow, Mercer county, is here to attend court and to visit his brother, Mr. James I. Royalty. Mr. Royalty is one of The Sun's first subscribers, and he informs us that his weekly visits are appreciated. These little bits of encouragement and good cheer are appreciated, and a country newspaper man is always "delighted" to meet a subscriber who enjoys reading his paper.

—Robert Lynn Bush, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bush, of this place, has received an appointment to take the course in the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. He will leave this week. There are no brighter young men in this county than Lynn Bush, and The Sun predicts he will pass the required examination, and make his mark in the world. He is possessed of all those attainments which lead one on to success, and his friends here feel sure that this record in this great institution will be one to be proud of.

STATE NEWS HAPPENINGS

WAGE INCREASE

Of Ten Per Cent Has Been Arranged For L. & N. Engineers.

Louisville, Ky.—After being in conference since January 7, the general committee of adjustment of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and General Manager B. M. Starks, of the L. & N., reached an agreement. It runs for an indefinite period from March 1 next, and by it some 1,200 to 1,300 men will get increases in the neighborhood of 10 per cent, the aggregate totaling over $200,000 per year. Some 350 yard engineers, now drawing $3.25 for a run of 100 miles will get $3.75.

This means that instead of making from $130 to $180, as at present, they will get from $145 to $200 a month. Engineers of through freights are raised from $4.25 per 100-mile run to $4.75. Instead of getting from $125 to $165 a month they will get $140 to $185.

By a readjustment over the overtime scale engineers will get 45 cents instead of 35 cents per hour for overtime, and it will begin when the train is one hour late instead of when it is two hours late, as reckoned at present.

KENTUCKIAN

One of the Two Victims of a Collision in Utah.

Salt Lake City, Utah.—Clifton B. Leigh, a well-known newspaper man of Salt Lake, was killed, State Representative Seth Taft, of Wayne county, was fatally injured and has since died, and Speaker Harry Josephs was slightly hurt in a collision on the Copper Belt railway at the mining camp of Bingham. The victims were members of a legislative party visiting the Bingham mines.

Mr. Leigh was representing the Salt Lake Herald. He was of a prominent Kentucky family and was at one time city editor of the Owensboro (Ky.) Messenger. His brother, Edward Leigh, is private secretary to Gov. Beckham. Representative Taft died three hours after the accident.

TRAINMEN KILLED

When the Engine Left the Track at Christiansburg, Ky.

Christiansburg, Ky.—Two men were injured, one probably fatally, when the engine of the Shelbyville-Christiansburg accommodation on the L. & N. left the rails and turned over about two miles from here at 4 o'clock this afternoon. John Parrell, the engineer, was pinned under the engine. His left foot was almost severed, and he received internal injuries which may cause his death. George Enot, the fireman, was thrown off the engine and escaped with severe bruises.

The passengers were bruised and joined up considerably.

HIS LIFE RISKED

By the Conductor So He Might Make the Run to Lexington.

Lexington, Ky.—In order that the interurban car from Versailles to this city might arrive here on time William Farrell, the conductor, risked his life by holding the trolley pole to the wire more than half the journey. The pole broke shortly after the car had left Versailles, and although Farrell took the chance of being electrocuted every foot of the way he decided to take the chance in order to get the car here on time. He rode alone the entire distance seated on top of the car holding the trolley to the wire.

Sentenced For Life.

Salyersville, Ky.—We, the jury, do agree and find the defendant guilty of murder, and fix his punishment by confinement in the penitentiary for life. This was the verdict of the jury in the case of the Commonwealth against Henry Montgomery for the murder of Alva Montgomery in this county in August last.

Son of an Outlaw.

Sergeant, Ky.—Messages from fromton, O., confirm the report of the murder there in a saloon of Clint Brannan, 30, son of the late Tandy Brannan, outlaw hanged four years ago at Wise, Va., for the murder of a woman. Brannan was in a dispute with the bartender, when the latter's brother shot him.

FORMER MAID

In a Cincinnati Home Is Said To Be the Salvationist's Sister.

Louisville, Ky.—A post-mortem examination is being made into the cause of the death of Henry Lafelling, who died in the city hospital. Lafelling walked into the hospital and fell to the floor exhausted. He was found to be in a dying condition and passed away within the hour. He told the officers that he was a member of the Salvation army, but local officers of that organization disclaim any knowledge of him.

Lafelling had worked for a local restaurant for the past three years. He is said to have a sister living in Cincinnati and Undertaker Bax trying to get into communication with her. It is said that his sister was recently married, but that formerly she was a maid in a prominent family there.

New Farmers' Institute.

Mayesville, Ky.—The Mason county farmers' institute met here under the auspices of the State department of agriculture. A local institute was organized, with H. Robb as president and Shelby Blatterman as secretary and treasurer.

Will Build Double Track.

Richmond, Ky.—Mason, Hanson & Coleman Co., contractors, this city, was awarded the contract to construct five miles of double track on the Norfolk & Western, beginning at Thacker, W. Va. The contract price is $700,000. The work, which is the main line, is to be completed in one year and six months.

John A. Gex Dead.

Warsaw, Ky.—John Anthony Gex, the wealthiest man in Gallatin county, died at his home on his farm below here. He celebrated his eighty-seventh birthday recently. Mr. Gex was well known in Cincinnati and Louisville, where he visited often.

LIBRARY BUILDING.

Plans Approved and Contract Let For State College Structure.

Lexington, Ky.—The executive committee of Kentucky State college held a meeting here, the members present being Dr. F. Frazee, Judge R. S. Stott, C. M. Clay, Judge W. T. Lafferty and C. B. Nichols. The principal business before the committee was the consideration of the plans which had been prepared for the new Carnegie library building. The plans were approved and the contract let to Hendricks Bros. of this city. The contractors can get their force ready. The new building will cost from $25,000 to $30,000.

EXPRESS COMPANY

Must Settle For Actual Damage Done To Live Stock in Transit.

Lexington, Ky.—Under a decision of Judge Watts Parker, of the Fayette circuit court, express companies are liable for the actual damage done live stock during shipment, no matter what value has been placed upon the stock when accepted by the express companies. This decision which is of interest to breeders, owners and carriers of trotting horses and thoroughbreds, was the result of a suit filed by B. F. Fox and David Logan, of Danville.

Too Much Religion.

Lexington, Ky.—In the Garland, an itinerant preacher, who attempted to commit suicide by battering his head against the walls of the steel cage at Barboursville, was placed in the East Kentucky lunatic asylum here. While walking on the streets at Barboursville he created a panic by breaking from his guards and knocking one man down who attempted to recapture him. Too great religious fervor is said to be the cause of his insanity.

New Kentucky Line.

Elizabethtown, Ky.—O. E. Linpoint, the Louisville electric railway promoter, began surveying an electric rail way route between this city and West Point. The route is 22 miles long and parallels the old L. & N. The cost of construction is estimated between $10,000 and $12,000 per mile. The road will probably be completed to Bowling Green.

Negro Baby Cremated.

Owingsville, Ky.—At Sharpshooter cabin belonging to Newt Ratliff was burned and a negro baby was cremated. The mother had placed the baby in bed to sleep, while she went into the Ratliff house to work.

All Mayors Enjoined.

Lexington, Ky.—Under judgment granted by Judge Watts Parker, the present mayor and all future mayors of Lexington are forever enjoined against the closing of livery stables in this city on Sunday.

STEAM IS MISTAKEN FOR SMOKE.

CAUSING A WILD PANIC IN A CHICAGO CHURCH.

Women With Babies Battered Frightened Men—Nineteen Persons Badly Injured.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—Nineteen persons were injured and scores of others barely escaped with their lives during a panic following a false alarm of fire in the Church of Santa Maria Addolorata, Grand avenue and Peoria street. The rush for the exits, during which dozens were ground under the feet of those behind them, resulted from the prank of boys who opened the radiator escape valve, which filled the vestibule with hissing steam.

The second mass was being celebrated when several boys, bent on frightening the worshippers, crept into the first floor of the building, occupied as a school hall, and began tampering with the radiator, in which a high pressure steam was maintained. One of the number unscrewed the top from the escape valve, allowing dense volumes of the vapor to flow from the east door.

Father Giacomo Gambera, the pastor, was in the midst of the sacred office and 200 members of the congregation were following his words devoutly when a cloud of steam was wafted in at the west door, which stood partially open. The horrified occupants of the edifice turned from their devotions to cast a glance into the hallway, which was filled with steam, and then they made a dash for the east door.

The priest halted for a moment in the midst of his service and then he hurried to his fast disappearing flock that there was no danger. He commanded them to return to their seats, to advance to the altar and to be calm, but they did not listen to what he said.

Men, women and children rushed to the west door, where they were crowded through the east door, none venturing to the west exit, where it was believed that the flames were raging. Women with babies in their arms battled with men for an opportunity to escape and voiced their demands for liberty by screams in their native Italian tongue.

Just outside of the east exit the stairway descends sharply to the floor below, ending in a small landing and a stained glass window. To the right another door opens into the hallway of the street floor. It was at this landing where the crush was greatest, and it was here that the frantic effort struggled with each other in a desperate effort to escape.

Unable to fight their way through the doorway, so great was the crush behind them, some of those in front endeavored to turn and push back those who were behind them. This was a fatal move, for the constantly increasing weight above them forced them to the floor and half a dozen men, women and children were forced down the stairs. One fell to the street six feet below, amid a shower of broken glass.

STABBED IN SHIELDING SON.

Young Man Interfered in Quarrel Between Parents.

Kansas City, Feb. 25.—Mrs. J. Oscar Richardson, wife of a stationery employee, fell between her son and husband in the act of peace-making at their home in Rosedale, near here, and was stabbed to the heart by Richardson.

The pair had been quarreling, when the son interfered, taking the mother's part. Richardson then attacked the son with a knife, when the mother interfered.

TRAIN MUTILATES MINISTER.

Preacher Falls Under Wheels and Is Ground to Death.

Westboro, Mass., Feb. 25.—The mutilated and dismembered body of the Dr. Everett D. Burr, a prominent Baptist clergyman, of Newton Center, was found lying beside the eastbound tracks of the Boston and Albany division of the New York Central railroad near the Summer street bridge.

Medical Examiner Charles S. Knight stated that death was due to accident. He said that the victim had undoubtedly fallen from a moving train while passing from one car to another.

Three Firemen Hurt.

St. Louis, Feb. 25.—The five-story building at the northwest corner of Franklin avenue and Seventh street, occupied by the Mohr Clothing Co., was damaged $75,000 by fire and three firemen were hurt, but none seriously.

Theater Burns.

Altoona, Pa., Feb. 25.—The Lyric theater, conducted as Keith's vaudeville house, was destroyed by fire. The fire is supposed to have been caused by crossed electric wires on the stage. The loss is about $90,000.

Troy, N. Y., Feb. 25.—

Presbyterian chapel was destroyed by fire. Loss $55,000.

More Smallpox.

Jefferson City, Mo., Feb. 25.—The clerk of the house of representatives and a guard at the penitentiary have been stricken with smallpox. Many of the legislators have left the city, and it is not likely that an attempt will be made to convene the legislature.

American Found Hanging.

Paris, Feb. 25.—A man's body, on which were found papers bearing the name A. Martin, "New York," was found hanging in the woods at Vincennes. It is supposed to have been a case of suicide.

NOTES FROM MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Pitt

Walk through the orchard and examine the fruit trees and see whether any damage is being done by mice or rabbits.

There should be an experimental plot on every farm, where new varieties can be tested before going into them extensively.

The individuality of each cow should be studied so as to meet her special needs in feed and care and get from her the maximum profit.

It is the shiftless, procrastinating farmer who wishes for the morrow, or he is ashamed of what he didn't do to-day and promises himself that it will be done to-morrow.

The winter season is the time to plan for the planting of vines and fruit trees this coming spring. If you are going to order nursery stock, get your order in early.

Barrels and boxes are poor storage places for the seed corn. They are apt to gather moisture, which is sure to rot the seed. Store the seed in a cool, dry place. Thorough ventilation is the essential thing in the storage of seed corn.

The annual report of the secretary of agriculture makes good reading for the farmer, and if you have not had the opportunity of perusing it, send for a copy to the department at Washington. They are to be had free as long as the supply lasts.

Recent experiments to prove the temper of the stingless bee showed that the most severe treatment failed to arouse them. The hives were shaken, the bees were shaken about, and even scooped up by the handful, but not once did they offer to sting.

During the cold weather kitchen refuse is apt to accumulate near the house. This should be looked after, as, when thawing weather comes, it is apt to cause trouble. Better get such refuse out to the compost heap where it will be available for the garden.

To excel as a corn grower one must have an acquaintance with the nature of soils; with the biology of plants; with the cultural methods and climatic conditions; with the laws of heredity and the marvelous potentialities wrapped up in a tiny seed.

The government crop report states that the exports of domestic cheese during the ten months ending October, 1906, amounted to 30,225,044 pounds, of which the United Kingdom took 17,212,083 pounds, or about 56 per cent. The total exports during a similar period in 1905 amounted to only 7,288,771 pounds.

One is made to realize what an important item weeds are upon the losing side of the account of the farmer when he considers the statement of Prof. T. J. Burritt that the loss from weeds in Illinois is fully one-half dollar per acre, which would make the total loss in the state to amount to $13,000,000 per year. Think of it! And it is not to be supposed that Illinois is worse weed ridden than other states. What are you doing to stop this leak?

Common Colds are the Cause of Many Serious Diseases.

Physicians who have gained a national reputation as analysts of the cause of various diseases, claim that if catching a cold could be avoided a long list of dangerous ailments would never be heard of. 'Every one knows that pneumonia and consumption originate from a cold, and chronic catarrh, bronchitis, and all throat and lung trouble are aggravated and rendered more serious by each fresh attack. Do not risk your life or take the chances when you have a cold. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will cure it before these diseases develop. This remedy contains no opium, morphine or other harmful drug and has thirty years of reputation back of it, gained by its cures under every condition. HUNTERS IN WILD RIDE ON CARIBOU

THRILLING ADVENTURE OF TWO MEN IN A MAINE
FOREST.

ANIMALS MAKE FOR RIVER

Nimrod Gets Away With No More Serious Damage Than That to Their Raiment and Nervous System.

Ranger, Me.—W. T. Ashby, of Caribou, is one of the two men in Maine who claim to have had a ride on the back of a live caribou. He says, in regard to it:

Willard Corlies, a hunter, when he lived at Ludlow many years ago, discovered that where the snow was about two feet deep and very light, the caribou could not get through it as fast as an active man; as they cannot trot, then, they have to gallop, and this appears to distress them greatly. He used to get on their backs and ride till they were done out, and then lead them to camp. He sold several to showmen for $100 each, but they soon died.

One Sunday morning, several years ago, a man named Wallace Smith and myself went out on a hard wood ridge to cut some wood for his horses; the snow was about two feet deep and as light as feathers. Caribou tracks were plentiful, and we soon saw three of the animals themselves eating moss from a fallen tree. We called toward them till they began to pick up their ears, then we threw our axes and with horrid yells rushed after them. The frightened, bewildered animals ran in a circle, and bleated like scared calves. I got after one and Smith selected another.

We chased them over logs and under windfalls. I soon got close to mine. I threw away my mitts and clinched my fingers in his long hair, and after a while got on his back. You could then hear him bleat a mile.

"Some 40 rods away there was a logging road, hard and smooth, and straight to the river, three miles away. My caribou headed straight for this, and I couldn't stop him. I got him by the ears and tried to rein him, but he was as stubborn as a mule. A moment later I saw the road ahead and heard my caribou give a pleased little bleat.

A little later everything was changed. I was still astride my beast,

He Went Down the Icy Road at a 2:40 Clip.

but wished I was off, for we were going down the icy road at a 2:40 clip, and the caribou was snorting and bucking like a broncho. Presently he shied at a dirty spot in the road and I was thrown with some violence on the ice. While I was rubbing my bruised elbow and getting my breath I heard loud shouts up the road and saw Wallace coming at great speed on another caribou.

"Stop him! Stop him, for God's sake, stop him! He's running away with me!" he yelled.

"I felt for my hat to 'shoo' him with, but it was gone; I sliced a rib-bush that had been cut from the road and jammed it in the face of the frantic animal. As it turned to get to it I seized a horn, but it soon dragged me down and stripped away my clothes with its sharp hoofs. I was so scared my breath so badly that I will carry the scar to my grave."

• Bear Grapples With "Iron Monster." Logansport, Ind.—A freight train on the C. & E. railroad, J. A. Allen, engineer, ran down and killed a huge brown bear about three miles north of Twelve Mile, Cass county. The bear probably escaped from a party of Russians who had been at Roche's, exhibiting the animal, with two other performing bears, and had made its way to the railroad track. It was wearing a muzzle and a ring in its nose, to which was attached a chain about 12 feet long. When first seen by the engineer the animal was mistaking for a calf, but when the engineer sounded his whistle the animal reared on its haunches and showed fight. The engineer was unable to stop the train in time to prevent striking the bear and the animal was killed and badly cut up. Engineer Allen picked up portions of the body and took them home as evidence.

HILLSBORO.

Mrs. J. H. Settles is some better at this writing.

Mrs. J. A. Coulter, who has been sick, has gone to the Infirmary at Lebanon for treatment.

Mrs. Colvin, of Williamsburg is visiting her daughter, Mrs. J. H. Settles.

Mrs. J. S. Inman is on the sick list.

Mrs. J. D. Sutherland has returned from a visit to relatives in Anderson county.

Mrs. J. S. Inman returned home Saturday from a visit to her sister in Illinois.

Quite a large crowd from here attended County Court.

The farmers are getting along fine with their tobacco beds. Most of all are ready to pool their 1907 crop.

Mrs. Thomas Coulter has returned home from a visit to her parents.

Mrs. Armstrong and daughter Flossie were in town Monday.

Mrs. J. M. Shields has returned home from a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Gruffy.

Miss Maud Inman spent last Saturday with Mrs. Julia Sutton.

Great Victory.

Early last year Chas. H. Sanford, our efficient Com. Attorney, obtained a fine against the International Harvester Co. against the International Harvester Co., on an indictment under the antitrust law, charging that the defendant is an unlawful combination or confederation—a trust.

Many thought Mr. Sanford could not sustain the indictment, but on Wednesday the Court of Appeals affirmed that judgment, the harvester company having appealed from the circuit court's decision.

Of course a fine of $2000 is nothing for the great trust, if that were all. But the principle has now been established; Mr. Sanford and other attorneys for the Commonwealth may henceforth go after the International with a vengeance and make the fur fly.

Nor is that all. Other trusts, like the American Tobacco Co., are in the same boat. Mr. Sanford has already begun prosecutions against the tobacco trust, and it goes without saying that he will riddle it. The fact is, this decision is far reaching. With the Society of Equity standing up against the Trust and Commonwealth Attorneys rapidly depleting its treasury, there is every reason for the farmer to take heart again, and feel assured of victory.

Is it not a source of pride to our people to know that Henry county furnishes the Commonwealth's Attorney who first succeeds in placing these gigantic combinations under legal condemnation, and in bringing the power of the State to bear against them? Mr. Sanford has certainly achieved much.—Henry County Local.

HARDESTY.

Mr. D. B. Sutherland, wife and little son Roy D., of Chaplin, spent Friday with Mr. J. H. Gray and family.

Mr. Ezra Goodlett and wife, of Lawrenceburg, spent the latter part of last week with the former's parents, Mr. W. S. Y. Goodlett.

Mr. Silas Armstrong bought of T. J. Trent one work horse, price $125.

Mr. Colvin, of Antioch, spent Saturday night and Sunday with his aunt, Mrs. W. S. Y. Goodlett.

Mrs. H. P. Chesser, who has been quite ill, is much better at this writing.

Miss Ida Gray was in Polin Tuesday afternoon shopping.

Mrs. W. S. Y. Goodlett and daughter Miss Tavie, spent last Friday with relatives in Springfield.

Mr. J. H. Gray boasts of raising the longest pansy of any one round here this year. It measures thirty-two in. in length.

Death in Unusual Manner.

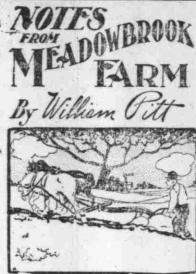

Middlesboro, Ky., Feb. 24.—Thrown from the track by the engine of a fast freight train, the body of a steer struck R. J. Goodwin, who was on a horse close by, and knocked him and the horse into the water of Cannon creek. Goodwin and the horse both were drowned.

Goodwin was driving several head of cattle to his farm near Four Mile. As he reached the railroad crossing near Fendale the train approached at a rapid rate of speed. The cattle were on the track and the train plowed its way through the bunch. Mr. Goodwin was not on the track and seemed to be out of his way.

The heavy engine picked up one of the steers, however, and threw it high into the air. It fell against the horse on which Mr. Goodwin was riding and both were thrown over a high embankment into the creek, which was swollen from rain. Mr. Goodwin was drowned and his body was taken from the creek about half a mile below where the accident happened. Mr. Goodwin was formerly Circuit Court Clerk and was well known in this section of the State.

Flowers that Like Shade.

The primrose and lily-of-the-valley will stand the shade of trees better than most other flowers.

The one-crop system means ultimate failure wherever practiced.

Keep the young stock growing if you would increase your profits.

If it is a question of the sheep or the dog, let the sheep stay and the dog go.

A company of Russian Christians is to locate on a farm in Anne Arundel county, Maryland.

Yes, admitted Farmer Wise, the dual purpose cow is all right, except for the milk. He wants to produce milk beef at a profit.

Collect the acorns from fruit trees now for spring grafting. They may be kept in moist sand or stuck into potatoes and put in the cellar.

A successful onion grower uses about 1,200 pounds of fertilizer per acre. It is made up as follows: Four parts of ammonia, eight parts phosphoric acid and eight parts potash.

And now the rice is coming in for protection. The New York State League for the Protection of Fish and Game recommends a law making it illegal to kill frogs between December 1 and May 31.

Experiments have shown that water glass solution properly made the first year may be used the second with good success. It should be heated to the boiling point, however, to sterilize it before the second use.

The ideal farm after all, is not the one that shows the greatest net returns in dollars and cents, but the one where father, mother and children have found the greatest amount of happiness and growth in character.

To destroy the little white worms which do injury at the roots of plants take a piece of perfectly fresh lime as large as an ordinary sized teacup, put in a pail of water and allow to dissolve. Pour off the clear water and apply enough to the soil to thoroughly saturate it.

It is the man behind the manger, and not the cattle, who is responsible for the spread or the prevention of tuberculosis. A good dry old-fashioned stable is better than science which is not reinforced by the full and constant supervision of all the conditions under which the cattle are kept.

While it may not be advisable on the large farm to compost manure, the same being drawn directly to the land as fast as made, the small farmer and the truck gardener can greatly increase the quantity of available plant food by having a well arranged compost heap.

The Fault-Finder. The neighbor who is always wanting to find fault needn't take the trouble to climb over his own fence.

A Royal Opportunity Sweethearts!

'tis certain to present itself. When it does, say the words you've longed for so long to say. At the same time present the beautiful young lady with a lovely diamond ring. You're sure to be happy if the ring and other presents are bought of me. To prove it, try it.
